Plot global domination from this stylish underground base

PHOTOGRAPHY: ANDY BARTER INTERIORS: MATTHEW MORRIS WRITER: LEA TEUSCHER

Plotting world domination is tiring work. We suggest a little lie down on Vincenzo De Cotiis' 'Fold' sofa for Baxter. The secret of this butter-soft leather sofa lies in its folds, executed with technical precision to create a seemingly effortless result. Even cold-hearted megalomaniacs like to be cosy; adding warmth to our bunker chic is Jan Kath's 'Billboard' rug collection - textural works in wool, silk and nettle - based on photographs of the scratched metal panels of the blank billboards that line the highways around Bangkok. Finally, our lair wouldn't be complete without Eos's 'Tama' table for Walter Knoll, which takes its cues from the sculptures of Alexander Calder and riffs off Isamu Noguchi's iconic coffee table. ★
